Police information about you changes if a criminal history event happens in relation to you. A criminal history event happens when any of the following occurs:

- You acquire a criminal history
- Your criminal history changes
- The Police Commissioner decides that information about you is investigative information (it doesn't matter when the conduct related to the investigative information happened or is alleged to have happened)
- You become subject to offender reporting obligations, an offender prohibition order or an offender prohibition disqualification order
- You are named as the respondent for an application for an offender prohibition order
- You are the subject of an application for an offender prohibition disqualification order
- You are charged with an offence for contravening a domestic violence order
- An international criminal history event happens in relation to you

Criminal history includes convictions or charges. A conviction means a finding of guilt or the acceptance of a plea of guilty by a court whether or not a conviction is recorded.

A risk assessment matter is:

- Any matter that is or may be relevant to whether you pose a risk of harm to people with disability
- A disability worker screening application or corresponding interstate application made by you was refused
- A working with children check application or corresponding interstate application made by you was refused
- A clearance or interstate NDIS clearance held by you was cancelled and an exclusion or interstate NDIS exclusion was issued to you
- A working with children clearance or interstate working with children authority held by you was cancelled and a negative notice was issued to you
- You are the subject of a workplace investigation about your alleged conduct that includes assault, violent behaviour, inappropriate sexual behaviour, fraud, deceit, theft or failing to provide appropriate care for a vulnerable person in your care
- You were the subject of an investigation by a government entity and, as a result of the investigation, you are subject to a condition or restriction in relation to having contact with a child
- A disciplinary action is taken against you
- A domestic violence order is made against you, including a temporary protection order
